Flood Dangers Subside, Threat Of Disease Follows In Texas

ROBSTOWN, Tex. (AP)—Flood dangers subsided with receding water today but threats of disease lingered after 10 days of south Texas cloudbursts.

Thousands forced from their homes remained in emergency shelters again last night as health authorities gave typhoid inoculations and warned residents of this wide Gulf Coast area near Corpus Christi to boil drinking water.

Yesterday was the first day since last Thursday that heavy downpours skipped this flood-plagued city and nearby Sinton. More than 2,500 were chased from piers.

Robstown city officials said it would be some time before the city is free of flood waters. A lake almost three miles wide circled the greatest part of the city's outskirts. The main residential district and the business district were slowly drying out last night.

Health officials said that since flood waters covered about 1,000 pit privies in the town's outskirts that all flood water must be assumed to be contaminated.

Mayor Dudley Dunlap of Robstown said no damage estimate was available.

Although the heavy rains skipped Robstown and Sinton yesterday, the heaviest in nine years flooded Uvalde in the goat-and-honey country west of San Antonio. Rain in Uvalde's city limits measured up to 6 inches. Uvalde is the home of former Vice President John Nance Garner.

Forty families, hurriedly evacuated, had returned to their homes.

Uncover Plot To Wreck Vote In Germany

BONN, Germany (AP)—The West German government said today it has uncovered a Communist plot to wreck next Sunday's national election by destroying voting stations throughout the country.

The federal press office said top Red agents captured in an attempted mass sneak invasion of West Germany during the last three days had admitted the Communist plan. It was to send squads of riot-trained toughs to attack election officials, destroy ballot boxes and frighten away voters.

The Communist "terror plan" called for groups of 20 hardened Reds to descend on each voting station, the press office said.

The captured Red agents were quoted as saying this was the master plan behind the invasion of Communists from East Germany.

Federal border police and local police have arrested 4,500 of these agents along the interzonal frontier separating West and East Germany. Most of these already have been sent back.

But hundreds slipped through because they had to use the electric fan last night in order to get some sleep during the hot evening hours. Today, naturally, they have the "electric fan stiffness" that always follows such a night.

Fair and continued hot tonight and Wednesday. Low tonight near 70; high Wednesday in the mid-90s.

The temperature at 1 a. m. was 73; 97 at 1 p. m., and 99 at 2 p. m.

One year ago today high 81, low 55, rainfall .40 inch. Two years ago high 83, low 67, rainfall .14 inch.

Today was one of stiff joints and sore muscles. A lot of folk insisted they had to use the electric fan last night in order to get some sleep during the hot evening hours. Today, naturally, they have the "electric fan stiffness" that always follows such a night.

Heat Wave Holds

Longest and Hottest Hot Spell Continues With No Relief Yet Appearing In Sight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
No general break in the summer season's longest and hottest heat wave appeared in sight today.

More hot and humid weather was the immediate outlook for sweltering millions from the Rockies eastward to the Atlantic Coast. There was no heavy rainfall in prospect for at least a couple of days if not longer.

The week-long spell of desert-like weather was blamed for scores of deaths. There were hundreds of persons overcome by the heat.

The oppressive weather also brought a slow-down in business and industry. Thousands of workers in offices and factories were sent home yesterday as the mercury edged toward the 100 degree mark.

Heat records for the date, as well as for the month of August, were broken in many cities. Temperatures in some sections of the sweater-belt had hit 95 or higher every day for the last week.

The Weather Bureau reported readings of 90 or higher from all states east of the Rockies yesterday. But the mercury soared above 100 in many places.

Many cities have had no heavy rainfall in weeks. Several have reported water shortages and use of water has been restricted.

Some of the hottest spots yesterday: Hagerstown, Md., 107, the highest reading in 23 years; Fredericksburg, Va., 106, top mark in 61 years; Gordonsville, Va., 105; Presidio, Tex., 103; Richmond, Va., 102; Philadelphia, Louisville, Ky., 101; Frederick, Md., 100; Bismarck, N.D., 101.

It was steaming weather in the nation's metropolitan areas. Chicago baked under a blazing all-day sun with a record 99. New York's millions felt just as wilted although the mercury was a few degrees lower.

It was 100 in St. Louis and Beloit, Wis., 99 in Nashville, Tenn., 98 in Kansas City, Colman, Ohio, Memphis, and Cincinnati, 97 in Boston, Detroit, Indianapolis and Charlotte, N.C. A 54 year old record of 92 degrees was broken in Albany, N.Y., which reported 93. Elmira's 94 marked the fifth straight day over 90, its longest hot stretch on record.

There was some temporary relief in sections of the Great Lakes region as showers fell. But temperatures climbed again when skies cleared. Light showers were predicted in the area today and tomorrow—but not much relief was expected.

In Washington, more than 20,000 federal employees were sent home in mid-afternoon as the mercury hit 99. Detroit, Chrysler sent home 3,000 workers because many workers had asked to be off during the afternoon.

Generally pleasant summer weather prevailed in the Rockies and westward to the Pacific Coast. Los Angeles had a high yesterday of 71; Seattle 69 and San Francisco 70.

North Korea's Pyongyang radio said Tuesday that Allied "war criminals" convicted by Red military courts would be released along with other Allied POWs.

"Returning prisoners have told of fellow POWs being sentenced to long prison terms on such charges as 'instigating against the peace.'"

The Red broadcast, heard in Tokyo, reiterated assurances the Communists gave the U.N. Command Monday at a meeting of the Military Armistices Commission.

Pyeongyang said a "releasing ceremony" was held Monday near Panmunjom during which the POWs were told they would be repatriated.

The broadcast did not say how many were in the group. It called them "the worst batch of war criminals" and said they had been convicted of "terrorist activities, riots within prison camps, insulting women and children, murder and violence in general, and arson."

The U.N. Command returned 2,400 Communist POWs Tuesday, raising to 62,817 the number of North Koreans and Chinese sent back to Red rule.

That leaves about 11,000 Reds still to be returned and U.N. sources said they expected to wind up their part of the exchange by Sunday.

Infant Is Reunited With His Parents After Long Separation

NEW YORK (AP)—Nineteen-month-old Johann Hartig Jr. was reunited with his parents today, ending a 15-month separation that began in an Austrian refugee camp.

The parents are Johann, 26, and Sarah Hartig, 22. They live on a farm at Roseland, Mo.

The Hartigs were preparing to leave for the United States in June, 1952, when they found that young Johann's name had been omitted from their visa. They sent him back to his grandmother, expecting he would follow along shortly.

But it was not until last July that arrangements were completed by the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States and by Beverly Pitts, St. Joseph, Mo., banker.

A council representative met the youngster at the airport and took him to his parents in a downtown hotel.

Mexicans Told They Face a Recession And Food Shortage

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico's President Adolfo Ruiz Cortines warned his people today they face a business recession and an increasing shortage of food.

The president, in his first "state of the nation" report to Congress, said he was confident "the truth about our problems, instead of frightening our people, will spur them to increase efforts to solve them."

He said the two most serious problems were:

1. Population is increasing faster than food supplies;
2. Quick economic development of the country has ended and has begun to fall off.

Stork Flies to New Record at Bothwell Hospital In August

The stork broke another record at Bothwell Hospital during the month of August with 68 babies born during the month. The hospital's previous record was broken the month before—July—with 65 babies. For the month of August, too, the girls came out ahead. There were 37 girls and 31 boys. This is the first time in many months that more girls have been born at the hospital than boys.

Golder Clark, Sedalia, Dies On Motorcycle

Fatally Injured While Riding In Kansas City

Golder Richard Clark, 24, son of Mrs. Doretta Ison, 409 East Fifth, and Burnham Clark, 14th and Park, was fatally injured about 12:30 a. m. Tuesday in Kansas City. He died about 8 a. m. at the General Hospital without regaining consciousness. His death was registered by the Kansas City police as the 48th traffic fatality of the year as compared to 22 at the same time in 1952.

Clark, it was reported, was riding a motorcycle on Southwest Trafficway in Kansas City and struck a curb. The machine careened 130 feet before overturning and throwing Clark to the pavement.

Hospital authorities in Kansas City reported Clark suffered a skull fracture as a result of the accident. He was identified by papers found in his wallet.

He was born at Latham, Oct. 4, 1929. He was reared and educated in the schools of Sedalia, attending Washington grade school and being graduated from Smith-Cotton High School with the class of May 29, 1947.

For several years he was employed at the Fox Theatre before going to Kansas City, where he was employed at the Waldman Garment Co., factory at the time of his death.

Surviving him are his mother, his stepfather, L. W. Ison, 409 East Fifth, and his father.

Atom Scientist Suggests Soviet Has Two A-Teams

WASHINGTON (AP)—An American atomic scientist suggested today that Russia may have two separate atomic teams—one working on H-bomb development, the other striving to improve A-bombs—and "presumably has more atomic capability from the standpoint of numbers of scientists than we thought."

Dr. Ralph Lapp, who worked on the wartime Manhattan Project which produced the first American A-bomb, said he drew that inference from the Atomic Energy Commission's (AEC) announcement of a Russian explosion Aug. 12—a blast which the AEC said had indications of involving a "thermonuclear" hydrogen reaction as well as a fission type—Dr. Lapp told a reporter:

"It is curious that the Russians appear to have tested a hydrogen type of device in the earlier test and then followed it up so quickly with a test of the fission type alone. It indicates almost simultaneous testing of two kinds of devices in what would appear to be the same series of tests."

This indicates that Russia apparently has enough atomic scientists to have two separate teams working on two different developments and capable of conducting virtually simultaneous tests.

"This, in turn, would indicate that we (the United States) have a gain in underestimated Russian atomic capability and would suggest that the United States needs to re-evaluate such Russian capability."

Shots Are Fired, Cops Chase Five Teen-agers Across K. C. Viaduct

KANSAS CITY (AP)—At least 17 shots were fired early today in a police motor car chase which began in Kansas City Kan., and extended across the Intercity Viaduct at speeds over 80 miles an hour.

The chase ended at the Liberty Memorial Mall in front of Union Station with the arrest of five teen-agers.

Seven police cars participated in the pursuit. The fleeing car, containing the teen-agers smashed into a police car at the mall entrance.

Three of the youths suffered head lacerations and were taken to General Hospital. All were held for investigation.

The chase began shortly after midnight when Kansas City, Kan., police received a call to investigate a disturbance among teen-agers.

Europe's Economy Is Much Improved

NEW YORK (AP)—Thomas J. Watson, chairman of the board of International Business Machines Corp., said today Europe's economy is "very much improved."

Returning aboard the liner United States from a two-month tour, Watson said "I feel we have every right to be encouraged."

Return UN Jobs To Four

United Nations High Tribunal Restores Posts for Americans Who Had Been Fired

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States was commissioned by her allies in the Korean War today to communicate with the Communists and "seek to make complete arrangements for a time and place" for a peace conference.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., (AP)—A United Nations high tribunal ordered the U. N. today to restore jobs to four employees and pay damages totaling $122,500 to seven others. All of them American citizens, they were fired because they refused to answer U. S. government questions about alleged Communist ties.

The four-member international board, highest appeals court for the U. N. staff, held for an employee to invoke the U. S. fifth amendment in refusing to answer such questions did not violate any U. N. staff rules.

But the tribunal upheld the firing of nine others—seven involved in Communist inquiries and two for non-political reasons—because they were "temporary-indefinite" employees whom the U. N. secretary general could dismiss if he thought such action was in the interests of the international organization.

Ten of the 11 granted reinstatement or damages had so-called permanent contracts of employment. The 11th employee, Ruth Crawford, former information officer for the U. N. International Children's Emergency Fund, had admitted a year's membership in the Communist Party, terminating in 1936, but was fired by former Secretary General Trygve Lie because she refused to tell the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee who invited her to join the party in 1935.

The appeal of still another "permanent" employee, Eugene Walach, a language services stenotypist, was referred back to the staff joint appeals board for another hearing. He had appeared before a federal grand jury investigating subversion. The U. N. in announcing his firing said he had not given a complete account of former employment as required by U. N. regulations.

Of the 11 employees in whose favor it decided, the tribunal ordered four reinstatement in their jobs, money damages of $7,000 to $40,000 to six others who do not want to go back to work for the U. N., and $10,000 damages and salary until her pension begins in 1955 to Jane Reed, 58-year-old library staff worker.

Government Moves Into Railroad Strike Threat

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government stepped in today to try to head off a railroad strike planned for Sept. 10, possibly the first of a series of forthcoming rail walkouts.

Today's meeting called by the National Mediation Board concerns only a dispute between the carriers and the Conductors Union, but all the major rail unions are drawing up new demands.

The 35,000 member Conductors Union scheduled its walkout Sept. 10 over a long-standing demand for pay rates graduated according to the power of locomotives on trains the conductors man.

Engineers and firemen already have such a pay system.

The mediation board called in representatives of the union and of railroad associations to try to get the strike called off pending efforts to work out a solution.

Meanwhile, nearly a score of other rail unions are planning to make new demands for pay raises and other benefits.

Practically all the unions have been under a moratorium against making new labor test demands on the carriers. This ban, which under previous agreements has applied to some workers for nearly three years, expires Oct. 1.

Legion Crowds St. Louis

Glitter and Glory, Unlike Anything There Before, Comes In Parade Today

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Glitter and glory—the like of which St. Louis never before had seen—surged through downtown streets today in the American Legion's parade of 100,000 participants.

For many legionnaires it was the big day of their 35th national convention where major battles are shaping up over proposed air force budget cuts and this nation's participation in the United Nations.

A hot sun beat down as the parade began. The temperature was near 90 and expected to press to 100 by mid-afternoon. That caused many of the older legionnaires, veterans of world war I to ride instead of march.

First aid stations were set up along the two-mile route which legion officials estimated would be packed with paraders for 10 hours. A hospital on wheels, staffed by six physicians and eight nurses, scuttled back and forth along the route to care for ailing marchers and spectators.

Thousands of spectators—many of them had come from nearby towns—jammed the curbsides. Vendors did a rush business on soft drinks, cotton candy and little Japanese parasols, used as sun shades.

The marchers got away at 9 a. m. (CST) amid the explosion of 38 aerial bombs which made downtown St. Louis sound like no man's land.

Spectators hung on building corners. They bought peach baskets for seats. Some merchants threw up wooden guards in front of their business to protect their plate glass fronts from the swarming crowd.

Legion officials estimated there were at least 200,000 on hand for the opening of the parade. They expected 500,000 before the day was over.

Bands and drum and bugle corps—some 300 of them—set a stirring tempo for the marchers. Some were sagging from two days and nights of impromptu tooling in streets and hotel lobbies.

But they kept coming wave after wave. It was the biggest parade here since the legion's last national convention in St. Louis in 1935. The parade passed within half a block of where the legion was born in 1919.

Georgia led the parade of states. Gov. Herman Talmadge was at the head of his state's procession. Other governors in the parade included John Fine of Pennsylvania, George Craig of Indiana.

The grand marshal of the parade, Steve Kriwanek of St. Louis, used 30 amateur radio operators with radio-equipped cars to help him keep the procession moving smoothly.

Put aside for the day were the expected floor fights over the air force budget cuts and the United States' position toward the U. N.

A controversial resolution urging re-establishment of the 143-wing air force program was approved yesterday by the legion's convention committee on aeronautics.

The action came at the end of a spirited three-hour discussion of the Eisenhower administration's five billion dollar reduction in the air force budget and its decision to cut back the air force program from 143 to 129 wings.

While the resolution could be blocked tomorrow by the convention committee on security, proponents of the measure have said the issue "will definitely be brought before the convention delegates."

Opponents of the resolution argued that the legion should go on record simply as favoring "the best possible air force" without specifying the number of wings.

Roscoe Turner, noted aviation pioneer, heads both the convention and standing committees on aeronautics. His standing committee issued a report Sunday criticizing the budget cut as "ill-timed."

Some members of the legion's foreign relations committee, commenting on an attack against the United Nations, were critical of the U. N. in varying degree but none thought this nation should withdraw as a member.

A legion sub-committee, part of the foreign relations group, has received for consideration 13 resolutions which either oppose admission of Red China to the U. N. or express loss of confidence in the U. N. as an effective security organization.

A sprinkling of notables, including Vice President Richard M. Nixon, joined the veterans of three wars—World War I and II and the Korean conflict—in the parade expected to take 10 hours to pass.

Traffic in the area was blocked off and streets and buses to the downtown area rerouted.

In addition to the veterans uniformed groups of the Legion Auxiliary and Sons of the Legion took part. Also marching were units of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard and National Guard. Military plans flew overhead at intervals.

A former national commander of the Legion, Donald R. Wilson of Clarksburg, W. Va., put into words the feeling of some delegates yesterday.

"Make sure that it (the United Nations) doesn't eventually give away your children, your rights, your citizenship and your flag," he said in a speech.

AT LEGION CONVENTION—Legionnaires show varying degrees of attention at the 35th national convention of the American Legion in St. Louis. Bitter convention debate is expected over the Legion's stand on such items as Air Force Budget cuts, the Korean truce and continued United States participation in the United Nations. Russia Has Atomic Blast Of Much Power

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia has produced another atomic explosion, the government announced last night, and evidence thus far available to U. S. experts indicates it was not a hydrogen blast though perhaps of considerable power.

The date was Aug. 23, the Atomic Energy Commission statement said, and "the explosion was in the same range of energy release as our recent Nevada tests, and would appear to be part of a series."

"If this proves to be the fact," the commission added, "no further announcement will be made unless intelligence indicates information of greater interest."

There were blasts of varying power in the 11-shot series which the United States conducted last spring at its proving ground in the Nevada desert, and to which the AEC compared the latest Russian effort.

The last one, on June 4, was generally described as the largest atomic explosion ever to be set off in the United States proper. It was estimated to be the equivalent of 50,000 tons of TNT, or about 2R times as powerful as the bomb dropped on Hiroshima.

Effects of the U. S. blast June 4 were seen or felt up to 500 miles from the test site.

This was the second U. S. disclosure in less than two weeks that the Russians had produced an atomic explosion. The earlier one on Aug. 19, seven days after it occurred, gave a measure of official American confirmation to Moscow's claim that Russian scientists had touched off a type of hydrogen bomb.

The AEC said then there was evidence of both fission and thermonuclear reactions, the latter being a scientific term for the intense heat produced in the fusion process of the hydrogen bomb.

Last night's announcement spoke only of "a fission explosion." Conventional A-bombs made from uranium employ the fission, or atom-splitting, process.

There was no immediate word from Moscow on the latest test, unlike the situation following the explosion of Aug. 12. Then the Moscow paper Pravda first broke the news to the world, and the official United States announcement followed a few hours later.

In addition to the two Russian blasts last month, the United States has announced that it detected three others. It has never said categorically, however, whether it disclosed all the explosions it detected.

The dates of the previous announcements, all made shortly after the actual explosions, were Sept. 23, 1949, Oct. 3, 1951, and Oct. 22, 1951.

The exact method used in detection is secret, but it is known to include among other factors the sampling of the upper air for the radioactivity produced by any atomic explosion.

Red Envoy Reported Ill of 'Heart Trouble'

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Lavrentiev was reported ill today with "according to Russian sources—"heart trouble."

An Iranian Foreign Ministry source quoted a Russian official as saying that Lavrentiev had been confined to his bed for several days following a heart attack caused by the high altitude of Tehran.

Earlier, the Iranian capital had been swept by rumors, all unconfirmed, that Lavrentiev had attempted suicide after receiving a telegram recalling him to Moscow.

Communist prestige suffered a bad reverse as a result of the overthrow Aug. 19 of Red-supported Premier Mohammed Mossadeq and the triumphant return of the Shah.

Expects 400 Deaths In Labor Day Traffic

CHICAGO (AP)—The National Safety Council estimates that 400 persons will be killed in traffic accidents in the United States over the Labor Day weekend.

The council expects a record 40 million vehicles on the highways during the period from 6 p. m. next Friday until midnight Monday, Sept. 7.

Two Death Certificates, But Husband Comes Back as POW

GALENA PARK, Tex. (AP)—Pfc. Walter B. Dixon, whose sister has two death certificates for him—one signed by former President Truman—faced a dilemma today.

Back from the dead in the continuing prisoner-of-war exchanges at Panmunjom, the 24-year-old Galena Park soldier was reported killed in action May 18, 1951.

Today, his 23-year-old wife, Mrs. Agnes Dixon of Lagrange, N. C.,

'Dead' Airman Is Returned In PW Exchange

SEATTLE (AP)—Mrs. Marianne Nixon knows now . . . Nick is alive.

Her mother and the Nixon family came into her hospital room yesterday.

"Is it about Nick?" she asked breathlessly.

Then they told her how Nick—Ensign Edwin A. Nixon, 25 Navy jet pilot—came back to life for her and their 3-day-old daughter when he stepped across the line into Korea's Freedom Village yesterday after weeks in a prison camp.

Early last March the Navy said the ensign died when his fighter, operating from the USS Philippine Sea, was downed by flak in enemy territory.

But Sunday night his name was in the list of exchanged prisoners. In some manner, as yet unexplained, he had survived that crash.

Young Mrs. Nixon's eyes shone as she held her new baby cradled in her arms.

"I had kept saying and hoping a miracle would happen," she whispered. "And now it has."

The fier's father, Dr. Edwin A. Nixon, was afraid to tell her when the word first came. She was weak from a Caesarian delivery Friday. And perhaps there had been a mistake.

But the Navy confirmed the ensign's repatriation and said he had been taken to a hospital in Seoul.

Cracks Iron Curtain With His Steam Roller

HOF, Germany (AP)—And now somebody's cracked the Iron Curtain with a steamroller.

Franz Neicher, an East German, was operating one on a bridge at a border crossing near here yesterday. He got special Soviet zone permission to drive the heavy roller across the bridge and turn it around on the West German side.

Instead of returning, he asked West German border guards for political asylum.

Startled Soviet zone guards on the other side of the bridge looked on helplessly.

Oil Barrel Traps Boy

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Six-year-old Romie Perry got himself into a barrel of trouble.

Spying an empty oil drum, he crawled into it yesterday to hide from playmates. Firemen required an hour with metal cutters to free him.

has a 1-year-old son by her second husband, Pfc. William S. Sasser of Lagrange. The boy was born seven months after her second marriage was annulled.

The sister, Mrs. Lorean Storey of Galena Park, said last night, "I feel sure Walter knows that Agnes married again, but I don't know if he is aware that she had a child."

"I've told him everything in many letters, but I don't know if he got all the letters. He has never mentioned the child to me in any of his letters. He did say he would do whatever Agnes wanted to do."

Mrs. Dixon, in Lagrange, refused to talk last night to newspapermen who reached her by telephone. Mrs. Storey said her sister-in-law revealed no plans to her in a letter she had from North Carolina last week.

"But she did say she was very anxious to see Walter," the sister said.

Mrs. Storey said Agnes legally cannot divorce Pfc. Dixon until he returns to the United States. The couple were together only five days after their April 3, 1950, marriage. Mrs. Storey said. He was ordered to the West Coast and about a month later shipped to Korea.

It was not until late in 1951 that the Communists released his name as a war prisoner.

Says Red Questioner Had Plans of New US Planes, Maps of Bases

FREEDOM VILLAGE, Korea (AP)—An American airman liberated today said he was questioned by a Russian who showed him plans for new U. S. warplanes and maps of American air bases.

Capt. Harry P. Heclund of Fullerton, Calif., said that after his B26 bomber was shot down in March 1951 his captors "took me into a house where there was a Russian in civilian clothes. He pulled a gun and laid it on a table."

Heclund said the Russian "showed me drawings of latest U. S. aircraft. Some of them I didn't recognize. I couldn't answer questions about them."

"Some of the drawings looked good to me," the flier added. "Among them were drawings of B5ls and B47s."

Army Engineers Cut Civil Works Expenses

WASHINGTON (AP)—The chief of Army Engineers has ordered a 323 million dollar cutback in expenditures for civil works, including flood-control and rivers and harbors programs.

An engineer spokesman said today Maj. Gen. S. E. Sturgis Jr. has ordered division engineers to reduce expenditures for the fiscal year ending next June 30 to 500 million dollars—although a total of 823 million is available in appropriations and unexpended funds. Division engineers are now revising the entire schedule of work on rivers and harbors, navigation and flood control.

Sees 4 Percent Corporation Income Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Richard M. Simpson (R-Pa.) said today that Congress may compromise on a cut of about 4 per cent in corporation income taxes on April 1.

Any such compromise, he indicated, would be part of a program aimed at averting bitter tax clashes between the Eisenhower administration and some key Republicans in Congress, such as flared during the past session.

Under present laws, corporation income taxes are due to drop automatically on April 1 from 52 per cent points to 47 on a corporation's taxable income—which would mean that a corporation's tax bill would be lowered by about 10 per cent. That would cost about two billion dollars annually in revenue at a time when the administration is struggling toward a balanced budget.

For example, a corporation making $100,000 profit under the present rate would pay $52,000 tax. Under the lower rate it would pay $47,000. This would be $5,000, or nearly 10 per cent, less.

President Eisenhower has urged indefinite postponement of the cut, but the request is sure to stir a fight in Congress.

Simpson, third-ranking Republican member of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, said the final result may be to fix the rate at 50 percentage points—roughly splitting the difference between the administration and supporters of the full reduction scheduled. Such a result would lower a corporation's tax bill by about 4 per cent.

Simpson said in an interview this might produce enough revenue to balance the budget if the administration, as some congressmen predict, also calls for a broader and more uniform system of excise (sales) taxes.

Eisenhower, in a tax message to Congress last May, said that although the 52 per cent corporate rate is "too high for the long run, the budget will not permit a reduction in both individual and regular corporate tax rates. A reduction in individual taxes must come first, for the benefit of the entire economy."

The administration has said it will let a 10 per cent cut for individual income tax payers take effect as scheduled on Jan. 1. The excess profits tax also dies on the same date, complicating the drive to keep revenue high enough for pay-as-you-go federal spending.

Postponement of any corporate income tax cut would just about balance out the loss in revenue from the excess profits tax.

Chairman Daniel A. Reed (R-NY) of the Ways and Means Committee, who fought to the last ditch against Eisenhower's move to extend the profits tax from July 1 to Jan. 1, already has indicated opposition to extending present corporate rates.

Reed said recently the scheduled reduction is a promise and ought to be fulfilled.

Simpson, however, said the committee and the administration may agree on other tax benefits for business which would mollify opposition to a 50 per cent corporate income rate.

Ike Is Leaving Rockies Today After Vacation

FRASER, Colo. (AP)—President Eisenhower ends a six-day vacation in the Colorado Rockies today and returns to the summer White House in Denver.

The President arranged to leave the ranch of his old friend Aksel Nielsen late in the day for the 70-mile drive back to Denver.

There he will headquarter again at the home of Mrs. Eisenhower's mother, Mrs. John S. Doud. The routine in Denver will be business in the mornings and golf in the afternoons—as it was from Aug. 8, when he arrived from Washington, until he left for Fraser last Thursday.

Eisenhower put in about 2½ hours yesterday helping to build a dam on the St. Louis Creek, which runs through the Nielsen ranch, to improve the trout fishing. Nielsen told newsmen it was a "long range project" designed to make the fishing better next season, but he also voiced the hope it might help the President land a few more trout before leaving today.

Eisenhower fished for a while yesterday, but there was no word on his catch.

The President said he hopes to stay in Colorado until about Sept. 20. He also had indicated he would stay longer if it weren't for two speaking engagements in Massachusetts Sept. 21.

France May Succeed In Blocking UN Talks On Moroccan Trouble

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—France needed the support of only one more Security Council member today to block consideration of the Moroccan situation. Three countries—Columbia, Chile and Denmark—have not yet announced their position.

As the 11-nation body prepared to continue its discussions today, France, Britain and the United States were lined up opposing the Arab-Asian demands that the issue be added to the council's agenda. Greece has announced it will abstain.

Although four member countries have said they will support the demands, the proposal appeared headed for defeat. Seven affirmative votes are needed to put it across, so even one more abstention would stymie council action.

The 15 Arab-Asian nations charge the recent removal of the Moroccan Sultan by France threatened international peace. France contends that the administration of Morocco is a purely internal affair and no concern of the U.N.

The four council members supporting the Arab-Asian demand are Nationalist China, the Soviet Union, Pakistan and Lebanon.

Reuther Terms Cudahy Meat Firm 'Unfair,' Urges Boycotting It

WASHINGTON (AP)—CIO President Walter P. Reuther today termed the Cudahy Meat Packing Co. "unfair" and urged CIO members not to buy Cudahy products. In a letter to all CIO affiliates, Reuther declared Cudahy was engaged in "a deliberate effort to destroy" the CIO Packinghouse Workers Union. He said the packing firm had instituted a speedup, denied collective bargaining rights and fired eight local union leaders.

Reuther then listed the principal Cudahy products by their trade names and said: "These are all unfair products insofar as the CIO is concerned."

There was no immediate comment from the packing company.

Mrs. Doras Herndon Retires After 41-2 Years As Teacher

When school starts this fall Mrs. Doras Herndon will not be starting back. For 41 1/2 years she has been a teacher in the public schools of Sedalia, but now they tell her she must retire, and she isn't happy over the idea, either. Teaching is her life, and she loves it. Anything else she might take up will certainly be a poor substitute, but she is definitely going to take up something. If she can't follow her own profession, she will do something else.

From the time she was a little youngster, Doras Herndon knew what she wanted to do when she grew up. She wanted to be a teacher. She started out at Summit School as a substitute at the "huge" sum of $10 a month. She had to be at the school all day, every day, where she taught some of the classes, helped with the grade cards, did work in the office, and was always on hand to go to some other school as a supply teacher. That was under Superintendent Buchanan. The principal of the school was Miss Lydia Montgomery.

Summit School was at the location of Washington School, only the building faced on Summit street and the school grounds didn't extend back to Engineer. They went only a half block back. The first grade she was given to teach was the third grade. She had quite a time teaching the youngsters division. She began with division of 10 and 15 and she really labored with those children trying to get them to understand it.

It was along about that time that the game of "Pinch" came out. Her girl friends were eager to play the new game, but no Doras. She had had enough of 10 and 15 all day long for so long that she didn't want even to see the figures. So she never did learn to play Pinch.

Doras taught four years and then she was out of the teaching profession for eight years. When she went back, she taught at Whittier School, under Supt. Gass. She had gone to school at University of Missouri, Columbia, and to Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg. She taught at Whittier, then went to Arlington where she taught until the little school was closed. Her last assignment was to Washington where she stayed until her retirement.

She liked teaching the fourth grade best of all the grades because she seemed to accomplish more with the children.

"Although most people do not agree with me," said Mrs. Herndon, "I think that the fourth grade is the most important year of the entire grade school."

Then she went on to explain why she felt that way. The first three grades the children are taught how to read, she said; the fourth grade is where, or should be where, they are taught to understand what they read. The first three grades are the primary grades in which they are just first getting the picture of things and the fourth grade is where they are taught how to apply them. The fourth grade, she thinks, is the one paid least attention to, and she liked to teach it because she wanted to give the children in that year the real foundation for the rest of their school years.

The one subject that Mrs. Herndon had disliked the most when she was in school was geography. When she started to teach geography she decided that she was not going to have youngsters going along hating it like she did. She was going to see that they liked it.

So, the first morning she started on the job of teaching her most hated subject she smiled down on the children and said: "Now we are going to take up the study of geography and you are going to love it. Oh, geography is so interesting — you learn all about people in far away places and it is such fun."

It worked. They were delighted every time they had geography. They absorbed every bit of it just like a sponge.

"Of course," said Mrs. Herndon, "I read everything I could find about the particular country I was teaching about and told all the interesting things about it that I read. I really worked at it, but you know I got so interested myself that I reached the place where I just love geography, too."

She worked the same system on the little children in her family who wouldn't eat eggs. They came to visit her and when she found out that they didn't like eggs, she told them they were going to have eggs for that particular meal.

"But we don't like eggs," protested the children.

"Oh, but you will like my eggs," she told them. "You have never tasted any eggs like my eggs. I can fix the best eggs of anybody in the United States."

All she did was boil the eggs, put butter and salt and pepper on them, but the youngsters agreed. They had never tasted such eggs, and when they went home their mother fixed eggs exactly the same way, but they just didn't taste like "Dodie's" eggs.

One reason that Doras Herndon was popular with her pupils was because she loved them, every last one of them. And the children responded to that love. She has had very few unpleasant things happen during her long years of teaching. She got along fine with almost all of the parents, but of course there may have been one or two she had a little trouble with, just as all teachers have.

Those little youngsters, says Mrs. Herndon, just become a part of your life. You watch them go on into another grade, you watch them grow up and go out into life and you never get through loving them. That love comes back to a teacher who really loves the children and teaching. They always remember.

"Why," said a friend of Mrs. Herndon, "I never know when some young man is going to come up to her, put his arms around her and kiss her. We were downtown and up came a good looking young man and the first thing he did when he saw her was kiss her. Cars stop in front of the house, or anywhere else, for that matter, if a young man sees her, and he no sooner gets out than he is hugging and kissing her."

They do, laughs Doras Herndon. They go away—some to service, some to live some place else—when they come back they look me up. And about the first thing they do is kiss me."

One young man tells about how the boys used to get in fights over their teachers—and when we were fighting over who had the best teacher we always won because we had you, he told her.

One year she started out in the fourth grade, then she was changed to the fifth, and then after six weeks come back to the fourth grade. When she came back a little boy put his arms around her and said: "I'm sure glad you came back—I learn better with you," and she said he was a bit slow and she took a little more pains with him because she wanted the children to learn. That was what she was getting paid for.

But she wasn't getting paid very much. It was first $10 a month, then $30, $35, $40, $45. She got up to $120 and that stuck for a good many years. It has been only the last few years she could make a good salary, and now she has to quit.

"This is my old teacher," said a young man delighted to see her. "You don't have to say 'old teacher,'" Doras Herndon laughed. "Can't you just say 'my teacher.' I'm not old." And she may be the age to retire, but she isn't going to stop doing things. She is still young enough to keep going, and she is going to start cleaning house to keep from thinking about the hurt of not returning to the school room this year. And after that she will try to find something else.

There should be some kind of a great tribute for women who have given the best of their lives to teaching the children in a community with only the thoughts of love and duty in their hearts—not just the dollar sign—and for such teachers no salary is too great. These women who teach for the love of teaching, they are the real teachers of America. Doras Herndon has always been just such a teacher.

Colonel Tells Of Doing Red Radio 'Show'

FREEDOM VILLAGE, Korea (AP)—An American lieutenant colonel said today he and a group of fellow prisoners facing starvation were forced by the Reds to make a propaganda broadcast over Pyongyang radio.

The men "felt very bad" about the broadcast, said Lt. Col. Paul V. Liles of Columbus, Ga., but they were so weak "they couldn't even march around the yard." And the Reds threatened any who refused to broadcast with a 100-mile march back to prison camp at Pyoktong.

"That was tantamount to a death sentence," said Liles in an interview following his liberation at Pannunjom today.

Liles was captured in the fall of 1950 while serving as an adviser with a South Korean unit. He said that in the months that followed he and several hundred prisoners were starved to death.

He said he approached camp authorities and asked to be allowed to appeal for food packages. Instead, the Reds collected 20 men and took them to the North Korean capital, Pyongyang, promising they would be allowed to appeal on the radio for Air Force food drops.

A Korean doctor who examined the POWs in Pyongyang found all were suffering from "extreme malnutrition" and insisted that they get eggs and meat, Liles said.

Korean guards sent to look for meat came back with one dog.

"It was delicious," Liles said.

Of the broadcast, he related:

All of the men were allowed to write speeches, but the North Koreans edited them to insert anti-American propaganda.

"I objected but the North Korean major said anyone who failed to make a speech would be marched back to Pyoktong on foot."

They tried to swerve around in front of me."

Dauernheim said the locomotive's horn was blowing, its bell ringing and its lights flashing.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A 27-year-old ex-sailor who has joined the army three times since May 1 is in the Presidio stockade today, charged with forging more than $10,000 in Treasury Department checks.

Hopes Demos Will Be Loyal To Nominee

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hill (D-Ala.) said today it's too early for the Democrats even to talk about a 1956 presidential nominee but that party members who participate in selection of a national ticket should pledge their loyalty to it.

Without naming them, the Alabama senator criticized Southern colleagues who have said they will not be bound in advance to support the nominee of the party's next convention.

Hill said if this question is going to be brought before the Democratic rally in Chicago Sept. 14-15, as suggested by Gov. Hugh White of Mississippi, he intends to be on hand to speak his mind on the issue.

"I think those who take part in the party's councils and who receive all of the benefits and honors of the party should be loyal to it and to its nominees," he declared in an interview.

On the other hand, Gov. John S. Battle of Virginia, said he will pass up the 1956 convention unless he has "reasonable assurances" that the party's pledge of loyalty to the national ticket will be honored.

"I would think the party leaders realize now they made a terrible mistake in setting up the pledge," Battle said yesterday. He played a major role in the successful flight last year to seat convention delegates from Virginia, South Carolina and Louisiana despite their refusal to be bound by the pledge.

Battle plans to attend the Chicago get-together this month. Several key Southerners have said they will not go. Among them is Sen. Holland (D-Fla.), whose decision was termed regrettable by Rep. Celler (D-N.Y.).

"The Democratic party, with good leadership and political acumen, can easily capture the House and the Senate in 1954," Celler said in a statement. "There should be no southern defections on the eve of victory."

Holland had said he has seen no evidence that the Democratic party leadership has changed the views which cost it four Southern states last year.

As for the loyalty pledge, Gov. White has suggested that the Chicago meeting could go on record as favoring its abandonment. But national headquarters spokesmen said they believe that if the issue is raised at Chicago, it will be shelved.

A subcommittee is scheduled to report on the adoption of formal rules for the national committee, but this group has no control over the national nominating convention beyond setting up the original role of delegates. The national conventions adopt their own rules.

The Chicago meeting will be aiming its spotlight primarily at former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee. Some party members have regarded this as an effort to keep Stevenson in the forefront for the 1956 nomination. However, Hill, who campaigned actively for Stevenson last year, said he thinks it is too early to begin talking about any presidential candidates.

Marine Ace Zooms Up 83,235 Feet In Skyrocket for Record

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Marine Corps ace has coasted to a new unofficial altitude record of 83,235 feet in the Douglas Skyrocket D558-2.

Lt. Col. Marion Eugene Carl, 37, of Quantico, Va., told a press conference yesterday he zoomed up to the new high Aug. 21, climbing the final 1 1/2 miles on momentum after exhausting 6,000 pounds of fuel in a little less than three minutes.

Only 1 Teacher Now That Six Nuns Resigned

JOHNSBURG, Ill. (AP)—A single teacher will register students tomorrow at the eight-room Johnsburg Public School, staffed last year by six Roman Catholic nuns.

The school became the focal point of a church-state controversy after a Lutheran housewife charged in a suit it was a parochial school operated with public funds. Enrollment in the elementary school is expected to drop sharply this year because the nuns are setting up a separate parochial school in Johnsburg, a predominantly Catholic community.

The public school last year had 194 pupils, including 132 Catholics. Most of the Catholics and some who are not are expected to follow the nuns to the parochial school, which will open Sept. 9.

Mrs. Dorothy Larson, 31, filed suit April 10 asking the McHenry County Circuit Court to close the Johnsburg Public School on grounds it violated constitutional guarantees of separation of church and state.

The woman, whose two children attended the school, claimed they were discriminated against because they were not Catholics.

In answering the suit, which will be heard Thursday by Judge Bernard Decker, the nuns denied the charges, adding that if the conditions ever existed, "they no longer exist" because the nuns had resigned their public teaching posts at the end of the school year last June.

Following the mass resignation, the Johnsburg school board hired one lay teacher to staff the public school, erected three years ago at a cost of $183,000.

The original Johnsburg Public School burned down 15 years ago and pupils were transferred to a parochial school. When the new public school was built in 1950, nuns and pupils transferred to it.

No One Wants to Buy Abandoned Lighthouse

CHARLESTON, S. C. (AP)—The U. S. National Park Service couldn't find anyone here willing to pay even $5 for a two-story, well-kept house.

Put up for auction, the structure didn't bring a single bid despite its excellent condition.

There was a house-moving problem involved. The structure, formerly a lighthouse keeper's dwelling, is located on Fort Sumter, a historic island in the entrance to Charleston Harbor.

As a result, it is being razed.

Polio Victim Gives Birth to Triplets

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP)—Mrs. Della Jean McKenzie, 28, whose legs have been paralyzed by polio since she was 12, gave birth to triplets—two girls and a boy—in Wood County Hospital yesterday. She and the babies were reported doing well.

Two of the infants weigh 3 pounds 14 ounces, the third a few ounces less. Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie have a 2-year-old son.

Power Failure Causes Blackout in Station

BALTIMORE (AP)—Pennsylvania station was plunged into darkness for 47 minutes last night by a power failure which stalled main-line traffic for more than two hours. Ticket sellers did business with the aid of coal oil lamps.

angle, the rocket plane shot up at probably 1,000 miles an hour at its fastest rate.

The new mark exceeds by nearly a mile the 79,494-foot record set in the same aircraft Aug. 15, 1951, by Douglas test pilot Bill Bridgeman. Bridgeman also established a world speed record of 1,238 miles an hour in the D558-2.

Col. Carl, credited with 18 Japanese planes during World War II, plans to try tomorrow to exceed Bridgeman's speed mark. He has made two tries in the past few days and failed.

He described his record altitude flight:

"The Skyrocket was dropped from the belly of a B29 Superfortress at an altitude of about 33,500 feet. I had a little trouble lighting the first two of the four rockets and dropped to 28,000 feet before I started climbing.

"The sky was a little darker near the top of the climb. There was a greater contrast between sunlight and shadow.

"I was perfectly comfortable in the pressurized cabin and in my pressure suit. The outside temperature was minus 70 at 55,000 feet and minus 57 at 80,000."

The aircraft coasted over the crest of its climb and headed down, gliding for about eight minutes before being landed at 150 m.p.h. on a long dry lake runway at Edwards Air Force Base on the Mojave Desert near here.

Tornado Victims Rush To Resume Housework Despite Tragedies

DETROIT (AP)—Two courageous women, who lost both legs as a result of the Flint, Mich., tornado three months ago, refuse to let a twister keep them from their housework.

Both women lost a daughter. One of them lost a husband and son too.

But Mrs. Lillian Burgess, 28, and Mrs. Lucille Parr, 33, want to return to the life of normal housewife just as soon as they can.

The pair enrolled in a work simplification course at Wayne University here yesterday. The course was especially designed for housewives suffering from heart ailments. However, university officials feel that the double amputees can benefit because the course is based on doing work while sitting.

After enrolling, Mrs. Burgess confided: "I can't wait to get started. I want to do everything, all my housework by myself. Do you know I already scrubbed a floor last week. The Red Cross hired a girl for us for a year and she lifted me down on the floor so I could scrub it."

He Was Prepared, But Not For This

DERBY, Colo. (AP)—There had been a rash of robberies in the neighborhood, and Floyd Sullivan, 43, a Derby cafe owner, was prepared.

He told police how he had just closed up and left his cafe when a dark sedan pulled to the curb beside him.

Nervously, he drew a .38-caliber pistol and fired it. The car sped away.

Sullivan went to a doctor. He had shot himself in the leg.

It Wasn't the Fall But the Sledgehammer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—It wasn't the 25-foot fall from a scaffold that sent 20-year-old Ray Scott Jr. to the hospital, but the sledgehammer that clipped him after he landed.

Scott, a Howard College football player, was working on the scaffold between the second and third floors of Capitol Heights Junior High School yesterday when he fell. He landed feet first, uninjured by the drop.

But he came down on a sledgehammer handle. The heavy hammer levered up and struck him in the face, gashing his chin and loosening a few teeth.

Radio Says Top China Reds Head for Moscow, Gives No Reason Why

TOKYO (AP)—The Communist Pyongyang radio said six top North Korean officials including Premier Kim Il Sung and Foreign Minister Nam Il left by train today for Moscow.

The broadcast heard here said the trip was made "at the invitation of Moscow" but it gave no indication why.

Kim is political boss of North Korea and commander of the army.

Nam served as chief Communist delegate during the long armistice negotiations.

The Pyongyang broadcast identified other members of the party as Pak Chong Ik, vice chairman of the North Korean Labor (Communist) party; Deputy Premier Chong Il Yong, Chairman Chong Chun Paek of the National Planning Board and Minister of Railways Kim Hoe Il.

His Duty Was Short But Full of Action

TOKYO (AP)—Marine Lt. Henry C. Clifford Jr., of Staten Island, N. Y., arrived in Korea in May, was wounded and captured in July and repatriated in August.

"It was short but interesting," Clifford said today. "Tonight I'm living home no worse off than when I came, and I've certainly learned a lot."

Harvard U. Reinstates Dr. Markham

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—The Harvard Corporation, governing body of the university, has reinstated Dr. Helen Deane Markham as associate professor of anatomy, declaring it cannot find proof that she "is today under Communist domination."

The board said evidence before it creates "in our minds a suspicion that she may well be," but "we are not willing to base a finding of grave misconduct . . . on mere suspicion."

However, the corporation said in an announcement last night, "as matters now stand" she will not be reappointed after her present term, which ends next June 30.

Mrs. Markham learned of her reinstatement while vacationing at Falmouth, Mass. She said she had not received official notification from Harvard and declined other comment.

Mrs. Markham was suspended with pay July 17 after she had twice refused to answer questions about alleged Communist ties before the Senate internal security (Jen-neer) subcommittee. At that time the corporation said, "We can no longer reasonably believe that she is free from Communist domination."

In its latest announcement the corporation said: "Weighing all the factors in the information we now have before us as best we may, we do not find proof which in our judgment is adequate to support a finding that Dr. Markham is today under Communist domination."

The corporation took note of testimony last June 17 before the Jenner subcommittee by Herbert A. Philbrick, former FBI undercover agent within the Communist party, that both Dr. Markham and her husband, George F., were members of the Communist party in 1947.

The Senate subcommittee later reported it was convinced that Mrs. Markham had been a Communist.

Tries All Day Before He Gets Self Arrested

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Millionaire sugar heir Adolph Spreckels II tried and tried and finally got himself arrested.

He started yesterday at the Orange County sheriff's and district attorney's offices in nearby Santa Ana, but had no luck. Officials either couldn't find the warrant against him or were out.

Then he and his attorney, Royal Galvin, found success at the office of Justice Donald J. Dodge here. Spreckels waived arraignment and bond was set at $5,000 with preliminary hearing set for Sept. 8.

Spreckels, 41, is charged with assault with intent to do great bodily harm to actress Kay Williams, one of his five former wives. Miss Williams suffered a concussion and multiple bruises on Aug. 20. She has been hospitalized. Her brother Vince signed the complaint against the sugar heir.

Last Wednesday when the case was called, Miss Williams was not present. Spreckels' attorneys got the charge dismissed. But the next day Justice Dodge issued a new warrant. The prosecution said Miss Williams would not be recuperated sufficiently to appear until about Sept. 10 and planned to postpone re-arresting Spreckels until then. But his attorneys said Spreckels didn't want the warrant hanging over him and wanted "to get the show on the road."

It Pays to Check Car For Tired Porcupines

TUCUMCARI, N.M. (AP)—A wandering rodent of the genus Erethizon spied the car of state policeman Melvin McGuire parked at his home.

The animal climbed a wheel and settled down for a nap in the shade of the fender.

McGuire came out and drove away . . . but not far.

Today his car has a new tire to replace the one riddled by porcupine quills.

FATHERS OF FLIGHT—The Wright Brothers

While testing the plane's engine at Kitty Hawk the Wright brothers noticed a broken sprocket. With characteristic resourcefulness they simply cemented it together and it held.

Trouble continued. A few days later one of the hollow propeller shafts cracked. One of the Wrights had to go back to Dayton to get new shafts—solid ones this time.

But finally, on Dec. 14, 1903, the plane was ready. The Wrights signalled to members of the nearby Kill Devil Life Saving Station, who came and helped carry the plane to the take-off hill a quarter of a mile away.

Merry-Go-Round Army Wants Slimmer WAC Waists

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—No public announcement has been made in order to spare the girls' feelings, but the army is taking a critical view of sagging WAC shapes. The problem is so pronounced that the army has ordered a special program of "formal physical exercise periods" and "instruction in wholesome dietary habits" for lady soldiers who bulge in the wrong places.

Under the army's new glamor standards, a WAC must keep her weight "well distributed" and be "within the limits established by AR 40-100 as acceptable for her height and age." She must also be "free from obvious defects of appearance remediable by physical exercise and good health practices." Of course, she is also expected to keep watch on her "posture and physical bearing."

Those who do not measure up will be given a chance to wear off surplus pounds by "participation in individual or team sports or physical activities." If this fails to trim them down to regulation shapeliness, however, they will be obliged to take formal exercises. These will be conducted with scientific regard for individual shapes and sizes.

"To the extent feasible, and when competent technical advice is available for guidance," says the regulation, "the exercises in these periods will be individualized to meet the differing needs of the women participating; this is especially desirable when the goal is to reduce or redistribute weight."

However, the army, wise to the habit of gold-bricking cautions: "it will be borne in mind that much of the benefit of such exercise depends upon frequency. An hour once or twice a month only is useless and may be detrimental."

Lettuce and Parsley

For any female physical culturists who may try to carry things too far, the army adds sternly: "certain important goals of military physical training for men, such as strengthening of muscle groups to meet the strains of combat and the development of a highly aggressive spirit, are neither required by, nor appropriate to the military duties assigned to women, and will not be pursued in a program for women."

In other words, the army wants its WACs to be feminine.

As for dieting, the army prescribes: "when-ever possible, instruction in diet should be given by dietary experts. Instruction will be based on the teachings of recognized authorities on nutrition. Women presenting dietary problems that cannot be met by moderate intake of well-balanced meals will be referred to a medical office for advice."

To this end, some WAC mess halls have set aside special "diet tables" for the fat WACs. An appraising sergeant singles out the ladies whose bulges seem to require special attention, and seats them at a table set with lettuce, parsley and the like. However, one corpulent WAC at the Pentagon confided to this column that she cheats by slipping down to the milk bar afterward and ordering a couple of double malts.

Note—The army is the last of the three services to become glamor-conscious. For years, the navy has been carefully grooming its Waves to bring out their sex appeal. Not to be outdone, the air force hired glamorous Jackie Cochran, lady pilot and cosmetics queen, to recommend how the WAFs could improve their looks. Though her comments were so uncomplimentary that the WAFs got up in arms, she drafted a set of standards which the air force has been quietly trying to follow.

Not Good for General Motors

The fire that destroyed the giant General Motors plant at Lavonia, Mich., certainly was not good for General Motors, but it may have been good as a warning to the U. S. In fact, it may have been an act of God.

Burnt up in that multimillion-dollar fire was not only the machinery for making Oldsmobile, Pontiac and Cadillac hydromotors, but also hydromotors for army tanks. This, of course, was a loss. But the destruction emphasized the danger of Wilson's "single source of supply"—the strategy of concentrating production in one or two big plants instead of spreading the orders out among several smaller plants.

Fortunately for the army, it is making hydromotors for tanks in another factory, so the Lavonia fire won't hurt tank production. But if the Wilson policy had already been put into effect the army tank program would have been out of luck.

Thus the Lavonia fire has caused defense production planners to think twice as to what would happen in case of H-bomb raids; and the single source of supply idea propounded by Charley Wilson may be scrapped.

Wilson vs. Small Business

Wilson's production thinking was not motivated by any idea of increasing General Motors business—though that would have been the result—he just thinks in terms of big business. It's second nature to him. Small companies, he has said privately are a nuisance; should be used only as sub-contractors. Big companies should get all the defense business.

Meanwhile, General Motors' own figures indicate that there's some truth in Charley's statement that what's good for General Motors is good for the United States. These figures show that GM pays 15 per cent of all corporate taxes paid in the United States, and five percent of all excess profits taxes. General Motors also grosses eleven billion dollars a year—and there are few sovereign nations, and few states of the United States, that gross eleven billions a year.

Capital News Capsules

More budget cuts—Budget Director Joe Dodge secretly notified all government agencies last week to plan even bigger budget slashes next year—over and above this year's cuts. This means the defense department will get another $6 billion cut—while Russia is spending more money on defense.

Movie of jet ace—A Hollywood agent got hold of America's number one jet ace, Captain Joe McConnell, when he returned from Korea, and tied him up legally for all movie rights. However, the air force flew a full colonel out to Hollywood, helped McConnell get out of the exclusive contract, and he has now signed to do a 3-D, technicolor movie for Warner Brothers.

It's Pretty Hard to Alihi School and Teacher Shortage

By Bruce Blossat

It's customary at this time of year to extend a cherry welcome to the millions of American youngsters trooping back to school. But we'll have to be careful how far we go when we start ticking off the "glorious privileges" these young people will enjoy.

In the first place, some 30 million, a record enrollment, will pour through the opening school doors this fall. About six million of these will study in buildings rated firetraps. Countless others will work in trailers, stores, bowling alleys, tool sheds, and similar makeshift surroundings. Naturally, the good classrooms will be packed to the rafters. Many students will study in shifts, and some beginning in the afternoon hours. This is a pretty old story in some sections.

But, generally speaking, the 1953 prospect for overcrowding is without precedent. Total enrollment will surpass last year's by 1,500,000, with most new students adding to the already mountainous burden in the elementary grades.

This deluge is no surprise. Anyone who watched the tremendous birth rates in the years right after World War II knew it was coming. And yet America's schools are largely unprepared to cope with it.

The U. S. Commissioner of Education, Lee Thurston, estimates that elementary schools alone are short 70,000 teachers. Teachers are actually leaving the profession, usually to take better paying jobs, faster than the colleges can train new ones. Probably millions of students are taught by instructors whose training falls short of standard.

New school construction is far behind the need. Much of the population growth has been in city suburbs, where tax revenues in many cases have been inadequate to provide necessary facilities.

Here and there, oddly, some older city schools are half deserted, as result of people moving out or the mere aging of the residents and the loss of school-age children. But even the city schools are usually packed. In some places there's been no new city school construction for 10 to 15 years.

The Office of Education says 42 per cent of the schools are 30 years old or more, and 17 per cent are over 50. We need 325,000 new classrooms right now, and by 1960 may need 700,000. And the teachers must be supplied to go with this expansion.

Thurston says the sole answer is for the country to spend more money on education. Education expenditures today, while higher in dollars than before, are 50 per cent less than they were in 1933, when measured as a percentage of our national income. In other words, even in depression times, we spent more of America's total substance on schooling than we do now.

Such a comparison makes our present showing look pretty pale. It would be rather hard for any of us to come up with a good alibi. We're getting what we pay for, which isn't too much. And it's kids who are suffering.

Who's Crazy?

In Chicago, state officials uncovered a bookie establishment being master-minded by a patient in a mental hospital.

Evidently the enterprising patient had been taking bets from other patients. And a number of hospital employees and a physician were involved.

A fair number of psychiatrists probably would say that these avid horse-players were like most of those on the outside, only a little more so. Dig those crazy horse-players!

Manners Make Friends—

If a little bit is nice a whole lot is better does not apply to perfume. A woman of taste uses perfume subtly, so it doesn't announce itself half way across the room or cause those who ride on the same train or bus to start putting up windows.

A bottle of perfume should go a long, long way, it should not drive others away.

When you go for a visit in your parents' home, remember to act like a guest. Just because they're your parents doesn't mean they will appreciate your taking over the house, rearranging the furniture, or giving out with household hints.

Young couples don't want their parents interfering in their lives, and older parents don't want their children interfering in their lives, either.

Business Soothsayers Differ

Some government authorities pooh-poo the idea that business has been hurt by the Korean truce. They say things are booming, and haul out some charts to prove it.

On the other hand, some of the steelmakers, some lumbermen, and others are noting a drop-off in their orders. And there seems to be a widening trend toward keeping less stuff piled up on shelves in anticipation of business.

Obviously one group is looking back a bit and the other is squinting at prospects ahead. But somebody ought to get economic seers like these together in the same room for a while. Then the poor, untutored citizen, walking around without a slide rule, might get to hear what they agree on—if anything.

"Bread" Money

In Liberia, Africa, the value of paper money is depicted in varying numbers of bread loaves engraved on the bills. Pictures of something familiar have to be used since most of the population is unable to read figures.

Set Standard

Naval operations against Tripoli in 1803-1805 completed formation of the United States Navy and gave it a high standard of heroic conduct to look back upon with pride, and to uphold in the future.

Transistors have proved satisfactory as electronic innards of special "translators" which have been designed to speed long-distance calls across the United States.

The World Today— Dulles Sends Up UN Balloon

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON —A secretary of state can get help, ranging from a little to a lot, from his department specialists when he wants to prepare a speech.

It may pass through a number of hands for discussion, changes or suggestions. For example, when former Secretary Dean Acheson made an important speech on Russia several years ago, work began on it about five months before he delivered it.

Secretary Dulles himself wrote the speech he gave in Boston last week before the American Bar Association, suggesting, among other things, that changes should be made in the United Nations Charter.

From what can be learned he didn't consult his buster of State Department experts on the U. N. The speech was so vague about the changes that it looks more like a trial balloon than any attempt to nail down ideas.

While the charter could be changed any time—if enough U. N. members voted for it—the question of changing it will come up automatically without anyone's suggesting it in 1955. The charter itself provides for that.

It was after Sunday school one Sunday morning that the family went in somewhere where there were scales and the youngster was put on to weigh—the little ticket came out and he was so thrilled about it.

After that every Sunday morning he had to go to the same place after Sunday school and get weighed. One Sunday morning he was disappointed. Daddy didn't seem to have a penny with him.

The next Sunday morning they went again and little George wanted to get weighed again.

Daddy took out his pocket and remarked: "I don't know whether I have a penny or not, George."

"I have," said George, "I saved one out."

Of course the collection box was shy one penny that morning, but George wasn't taking chances of not getting his little ticket out of the machine.—H. L.

Two girls went in recently to get ice cream sodas and both of them ordered chocolate sodas. Then suddenly one of them changed her mind and ordered a cherry soda.

When it came time to pay, the one with the cherry soda was charged 27c and the other one with the chocolate only 9c.

"On," said the girl with the chocolate sodas, "There has been a mistake—you only charged me 9c."

"That's right," said the girl waiting on them, "Chocolate sodas are on sale today—only 9c. And the girl with the cherry soda was sure disgusted with herself for changing her mind.—H. L.

"What is a spat-tula?" asked the man of his wife.

"I don't know," said the wife, "I never heard of it. In what way is it used?"

"It says here," the man read from the recipe, "In spreading the cake icing use a spat-tula."

Well, it wasn't fair to laugh—but laugh she did. That's spatula," she said showing him what it was, "Not a spat-tula."—H. L.

ROSE'S Last Summer

by Margaret Millar

Copyright 1952 by Margaret Millar. Used by arrangement with the publishers, Random House, Inc. Distributed by NEA Service.

THE STORY: Rose French, once a famous star of the silent films, had been on the skids several years and was a patient of Frank Clyde, of the mental hygiene center. One Monday afternoon Rose phoned Frank to tell him she had a job out of town and was leaving. The next morning Frank receives a postcard on which a rose had been drawn. Then Frank learns that Rose is dead.

II

ROSE'S body was found by Ortega, the young gardener on the Pearce estate that had been rented to some summer people from San Francisco. Ortega went out early Tuesday morning to set out a flat of larkspur in the bare patch of ground between the patio and the garage. Rose was lying on her face beside the lily pool. A small, white canvas garden chair was overturned behind her, and just out of reach of her hand was a battered rathide suitcase covered with scraps of labels.

Willett Goodfield was at the table in the dinette whose windows faced eastward to the mountains. The morning paper was open in front of him; though he wasn't reading. It was his habit to keep the paper there in case Ethel his wife should unexpectedly show up for breakfast; then, by staring at it, he could subtly show her that he preferred to be alone in the morning until he became adjusted to the new day. This business of adjusting wasn't getting any easier. There was worry over his mother and the recurring pain in his back which Willett diagnosed as kidney stones. If he was depressed, and imagination, if he wasn't. There was indignation, his new bridge which didn't fit properly, the exorbitant rent on this house he'd been forced to take for the summer, and the battery on the car which kept going dead.

Willett was pink and portly. He looked like a banker or a lawyer. In actual fact, he had never done anything in his 35 years except pay his bills, and in fact, without the veto as Russia has repeatedly used its veto power in the Security Council to block United Nations action.

At one point in his talk, Dulles was critical of this overuse of the veto. But he can hardly have meant this country would consider eliminating it since the veto works both ways.

This country could use the veto to block U. N. action inspired by Russia any time it thought necessary. In fact, without the veto as Russia has repeatedly used its veto power in the Security Council to block United Nations action.

Ortega blew into the room, his heavy work boots crashing over the waxed concrete floors.

"Sir, sir," Ortega said. "A lady lying down dead, sir, on my golly."

"You should learn to knock before—"

"A poor old lady—my golly, sir, come quick."

Ortega was grinning broadly, out of nervousness, and his face was the color of ripe limes. Ortega went with the house—his services were included in the rent—and Willett had never spoken to him before or even noticed him particularly.

"Dead woman, you say? Well," Willett cleared his throat. "Well, I'll tend to the matter immediately."

BREATHING hard from annoyance, not exertion, Willett followed Ortega around the side of the house to the lily pool and Rose.

"Knowing his eyes so as not to get too clear or vivid a picture of anything, Willett glanced briefly at the woman's body and returned to the house to call the police. He was trembling all over and the pain in his back was intense.

Rose's body was lying beside the lily pool.

Whispers went around the crowd that Rose had been attacked, drowned, strangled, shot; but Captain Greer found no marks of violence at all except for the abrasions on her nose and forehead where she had fallen on the flagstones. The dark areas around her neck and head were not bruises, Greer asserted; Willett, they were usually present in normal deaths. Rose did not look normal, though. Her mouth was open, the jaw loose, and her cheeks were sunken and gray as putty.

Greer found her purse underneath the body, and there were some letters in it, a Bank of America checkbook, a driver's license that had expired seven years before, a religious pamphlet, and half a dozen penny postcards all of them addressed to Mr. Frank Clyde, 321 Montecito Street, La Mesa. There was no message written on any of them. Greer drew only one conclusion from the postcards, that Rose hadn't expected to die. In his opinion, the cards plus the fact that the suitcase was packed for a trip, with several changes of clothing, toothbrush, aspirin tablets, comb, and a pint of bourbon wrapped carefully inside a pink boned corset, ruled out suicide. Perhaps she had taken a short cut to the railway depot, which was only a quarter of a mile farther on, and coming upon this pleasant little garden, she had stopped to rest a while.

"Why here?" Willett kept saying. "Why in my garden? There are signs up, No Trespassing."

"I don't imagine a woman like Miss French would pay much attention to signs," Greer had taken an instant dislike to Willett, and was rather pleased that Rose, with a choice of gardens, had chosen Willett's.

ETHEL went upstairs. She opened Olive's door, saw that the old lady was still sleeping, and went on to her own room. Here, curled up on the upholstered window seat, she watched the people below moving around the patio and the lawn, or standing in small tense groups near the lily pool. As the news spread the crowd grew. There must have been 50 people already, but Ethel recognized only three of them: Ortega in animated conversation with a policeman, Willett wiping his forehead with a handkerchief, and Ada Murphy, the maid, just returned from town with a large bag of groceries which she clung to with both arms.

They all looked quite absurd, yet Ethel envied them. She would have liked to defy Willett and go down and mingle with the crowd, talk a little, listen a great deal, and experience that sense of excitement and comradeship which sudden death arouses in the living. But she didn't have the energy to move until the old lady called her name.

"Ethel?"

"Coming." She crossed the hall and opened the door. The old lady's eyes were open and glared like twin glass marbles among the pillows. Her voice was husky with sleep. "Have they found out who she is?"

"I don't know. Willett wouldn't let me stay down."

The old lady turned and coughed into her pillows. "I had a bad dream, but I feel pretty good now."

"The least you could do is send all these people away," Willett's eyes were bloodshot and trickles of sweat slid down behind his ears and soaked into his hard, white collar. "My mother's a very sick woman. She can't stand any excitement. Send all those people away."

"I would if I had a couple of divisions of marines," Greer said.

"You're supposed to have some authority."

"I have the authority but I haven't the men. It's impossible to keep people away from fires, accidents, murders—"

"Murders! You're not implying that this woman was murdered?"

"I don't know. I'm not a doctor."

Bob Thomas in Hollywood—

Richard Todd Can Tell You Why English Omit The Ice

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — Among the things you can find out from Richard Todd is the state of the British film industry and why the English don't ice their highballs.

The Irishman first attracted interest in the U. S. in "The Hasty Heart," for which he won an Academy nomination in 1949. Since then he has made three costume epics for Walt Disney, the latest being "Rob Roy," which he recently finished in Scotland.

The actor is here for a social and publicity whirl, and I joined him for a lunch. We discussed a variety of topics, and I guess I'd better put the more significant ones first. Like how the film business is faring in England.

It seems to be getting into better shape," said Todd. "I don't mean there is more work, because there isn't. The trend has been toward fewer jobs in the industry. But the business itself is getting on a more stable basis. While less pictures are being made, less money is being lost. Pictures are being made more economically and have a better chance to show a profit."

Todd is under contract to Associated British, which isn't as well known as the J. Arthur Rank operation. "While Rank would be losing a couple of million a year, Associated British would be making a couple of million," he said.

"But the British film industry owes a great deal to Rank. He came in with a lot of money and made important pictures. He raised the status of our films in the world market."

Todd is here with his wife, who has been suffering from what he calls "an upset tummy."

"The same thing always happens when we come out here," he said, referring to the United States. "Both of us get upset tummies and I think I know what causes it—the ice in the drinks."

This brought up what Americans consider the curious English custom of serving drinks at room temperature.

"Mind you, we do ice some of our drinks," Todd remarked. "The long drinks—those with gin or rum—are usually served with ice. But I would never put ice in whisky or brandy at home. They are at their best at room temperature. The cooler you make them, the less flavor and aroma you get."

American GIs in England had the common complaint about "warm beer." Todd defended his countrymen on that score:

"The best beers are the dark, malty ones, and they taste best when not cold. Of course, it is all right to chill the light beers which Americans seem to favor." But he had little regard for that type.

Japanese Interpreter Gets Thanks From GIs

INCHON, Korea (AP)—Eighty freed Americans today collected $2,079 for a Japanese civilian who "made life easier for us" in North Korean prison camps.

The money was sent to Kiyosato (Mike) Tsutsui, who was captured soon after going to Korea with the U. S. 24th Division in July 1950. He has been repatriated.

Sgt. Wilbert R. Estabrook of Portland, Maine, said: "Mike went to bat for us when he didn't have to—and when it was dangerous for him to step out of line. He was our interpreter with the North Koreans and he made life much easier for us when they were kicking us around and plenty were dying from starvation and cold."

Chiefs Win BJ Title: Beat Boonville Lions 6-4 In Final Game

Team Tightens Up For Schulz, Who Allowed Three Hits for 4 Runs

The Ban Johnson Championship of the Central Missouri League went to the Sedalia Chiefs Monday night when they defeated the Boonville Lions in the rubber game by a score of 6-4. Both teams had won two games each in the series.

The Chiefs took a three run early lead in the opening inning while the Lions came back in the top of the third to score a run and stage a three run rally in the fifth to take the lead. The Chiefs then of the sixth and broke the tie in the eighth with two scores to win.

In the opening stanza Case walked, Higgins was thrown out, Thomas took a walk, Miller hit a double which scored Case and Thomas. He scored on Bennett's hit. Tied in the sixth when Thomas and Miller walked and Thomas scored on a hit by Fall. The winning score came when Thomas singled in the eighth, scored on a three base hit by Miller and Miller scored on Schulz's hit.

Boonville's three run rally in the fifth resulted when Cleary singled, Wing walked and Tekotte followed with a home run. The lone run in the third was made when Cleary was safe on a fielder's choice, went to second on an error, to third on a passed ball and stole home for the score.

George Thompson attributed his victory to the fine pitching staff of the Chiefs. The Lions, he declared has a better hitting club, but his club tightened in the pinches and gave excellent support to the pitching department.

Schulz allowed but three hits, walked five, hit one and struck out four, while Moore struck out seven, allowed four hits, walked four in his five and a third inning and May fanned three, allowed three hits and no walks.

Dunn Says US Does Well In Negotiations For Bases In Spain

NEW YORK (AP)—James C. Dunn, ambassador to Spain, says the United States is "doing very well" in negotiations for U.S. air bases in Spain in return for American aid.

Dunn made the statement to newsmen yesterday as he passed through here on a plane trip from Madrid to Washington for State Department consultations on the negotiations with Spain.

Dunn said of the talks with Spanish officials: "There is good disposition on both sides. But it is one of those negotiations composed of a lot of detail, and it takes time. It looks very encouraging and I am optimistic. The Spanish themselves, through the press, say that we are close to an agreement."

Hal Boyle's Column—

Full Moon Is Often Man's Enemy In Hustle of City

By HAL BOYLE

WOODLAND, N. Y. (AP)—The full moon is often man's enemy in the city.

It stirs in him an old disquiet, an ancient tumult of the blood, and whispers in his heart:

"What are you doing here, city child? How can you breathe in all this steaming concrete? Have you forgotten the feel of the wind on a hill?"

This silent message sends a surge of restlessness through the sad, grownup children of the city. The meekest wives start quarrels with their husbands. The mildest men look around for a cop to pick a fight with. And lovers weep without reason and wonder how long love lasts.

Ask many a veteran police sergeant or bartender what the full moon does to people, and you'll get the answer:

"It makes them crazy. I wish they'd all leave town."

And that's not a bad idea. If everybody left town during a full moon and went out to the countryside, all mankind would be happier.

For in the country a full moon is both man's nurse and spiritual adviser. It takes him back home to nature, the lost mother he ran away from long ago and has been homesick in his soul for ever since. It gives him a shining peace, a mystic ecstasy, a sense of being where he belongs, a quiet gratitude for the deep privilege of breath.

So it is with me. And isn't it with you?

The other evening, at the end of a vacation, I sat alone on a cabin porch in the Catskill Mountains and watched the dark come down. The sun had sunk in red confusion, a bonfire fed full by the dry.

Somehow an owl, that wood of all the world's regrets, and a great full moon rose up like a big blob of yellow butter to soothe the hurts and burns of the day.

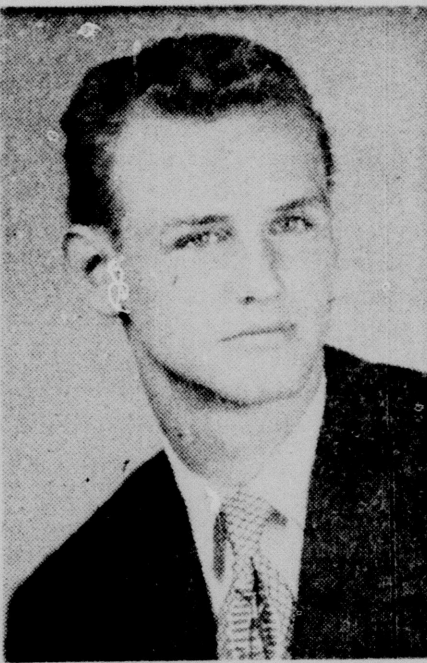

As it ripened to silver, I could see the face of the man in the moon clearly. Ever since boyhood he has worn for me the same expression—eyebrows lifted, mouth open in changeless surprise. Always I had wondered why. And suddenly I understood. Why the man in the moon is a moralist, eternally astonished at all the stupid things he sees on earth.

Then the invisible choir of night began its hum to the moon. A cool breeze thrummed a green guitar—the pine tree by the porch. Did you ever notice how even on the stillest day evergreens always make a murmurous music? That is why they are planted in cemeteries—so those who sleep in these silent cities will never lack a lullaby.

A thousand peeper frogs began their shrill chorus. A bullfrog, the patriarch of the swamp, blew suddenly on his mighty tuba, "Jug-o-rum, jug-o-rum, jug-o-rum." The little frogs, awed by this big bass cry of thirst, paused respectfully, then tried to drown him out in a myriad peepings.

Somehow an owl, that feathered inquisitor, asked a terrible question. "Who? Who? Who?" And I could imagine each safely

ENLISTS IN MARINES — James LeRoy Dent, son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Dent, 152 Autumn Ave., left Sedalia Friday for Kansas City to enlist in the Marine Corps for three years. A graduate of Smith-Cotton High School, he also attended the University of Missouri and Central Missouri State College. Active in sports while in high school, he ranked second in the state in pole vaulting in 1932.

huddled rabbit replying boldly (under his breath): "Not men, this time, you flat-faced assassin."

Then the bug gossip in the dark arose. One bug said, "Katy did!" Another bug answered stoutly, "She did not!" Pause. The second bug apparently decided that, well, maybe he was wrong after all. "Katy did!" he cried. "Katy did!" The first bug immediately switched from accuser to defender. "She did not!" he said firmly. "She did not!"

Soon all the bugs were wrangling back and forth. "Katy did!" "She did not!" What was behind this old forest scandal? Who was Katy? A six-legged Helen of Troy? Or just a flighty girl insect who eloped with another lady's insect husband? The bullfrog was tired of the whole argument, and croaked for another drink. "Jug-o-rum, jug-o-rum."

The night had a million voices, and it was as if I had an ear for every sound—from a field mouse football to every sleepy bird chirp. The moon flooded me with a warm feeling of kinship for all the hidden life around men, a brotherhood of darkness and moonlight. I felt myself a part of them.

Report Cries for Help In Czech's Building

BERLIN (AP)—A man telephoned West Berlin police today and reported in an excited voice that he had heard cries for "help" coming from the Czech military mission building in the U. S. sector.

"That's life for you," I said aloud to the surprised man in the moon. "The innocent bystander always gets stung."

Then a voice I always obey—well, almost always—called sleepily from inside the cabin:

"Are you going to stay up all night out there talking to your self? Don't you know that's a sign of age? My feet are cold."

So to bed. I closed my eyes and turned off the moon, and awoke to find a bright sun lighting the road back to the city and the daily battle for the paycheck. Sure do miss that country moon.

Report Cries for Help In Czech's Building

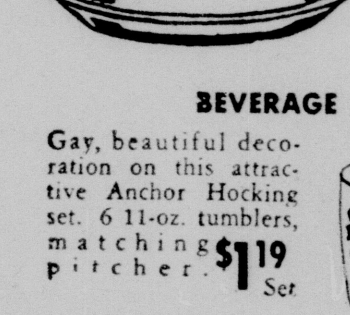

BERLIN (AP)—A man telephoned West Berlin police today and reported in an excited voice that he had heard cries for "help" coming from the Czech military mission building in the U. S. sector.

A patrol car was sent to the scene, but mission officials barred police from entering the building, police headquarters said. The Czechs reported they had "no knowledge whatsoever" of any cries for help.
